

This is in response to some information I received of the new broadcast service Low Power FM possibly knocking out my local K-LOVE radio. It's one of my most-listened to stations, along with thousands others across the nation and the world. This is a listener-funded program, no sponsors, no commercials (actually no commercials - just music, news, and short messages). The spiritual encouragement it gives me and how important it is to have at least some spiritual influence in your life is more than enough reason to keep it on the air.
